

Discovery[®]

Personal Profile

Graeme Wright

07 May 2025

Foundation Chapter
Management Chapter
Personal Achievement Chapter
Interview Chapter

Personal Details

Graeme Wright
graeme.wright@weston.ac.uk

Telephone:

Date Completed: 07 May 2025

Date Printed: 27 May 2025

Referral Code: Weston College/ELEVATE

Contents

Introduction	5
Overview	6
Personal Style	6
Interacting with Others	6
Decision Making	7
Key Strengths & Weaknesses	8
Strengths	8
Possible Weaknesses	9
Value to the Team	10
Effective Communications	11
Barriers to Effective Communication	12
Possible Blind Spots	13
Opposite Type	14
Suggestions for Development	16
Management	17
Creating the Ideal Environment	17
Managing Graeme	18
Motivating Graeme	19
Management Style	20
Personal Achievement Chapter	21
Living on Purpose	22
Time and Life Management	23
Personal Creativity	24
Lifelong Learning	25
Learning Styles	26
Interview Questions	27

The Insights Discovery® 72 Type Wheel 28

The Insights Discovery® Colour Dynamics 29

Introduction

This Insights Discovery profile is based on Graeme Wright's responses to the Insights Preference Evaluator which was completed on 07 May 2025.

The origins of personality theory can be traced back to the fifth century BC, when Hippocrates identified four distinct energies exhibited by different people. The Insights System is built around the model of personality first identified by the Swiss psychologist Carl Gustav Jung. This model was published in his 1921 work "Psychological Types" and developed in subsequent writings. Jung's work on personality and preferences has since been adopted as the seminal work in understanding personality and has been the subject of study for thousands of researchers to the present day.

Using Jung's typology, this Insights Discovery profile offers a framework for self-understanding and development. Research suggests that a good understanding of self, both strengths and weaknesses, enables individuals to develop effective strategies for interaction and can help them to better respond to the demands of their environment.

Generated from several hundred thousand permutations of statements, this profile is unique. It reports statements which your Evaluator responses indicate may apply to you. Modify or delete any statement which does not apply, but only after checking with colleagues or friends to identify whether the statement may be a "blind spot" for you.

Use this profile pro-actively. That is, identify the key areas in which you can develop and take action. Share the important aspects with friends and colleagues. Ask for feedback from them on areas which seem particularly relevant for you and develop an action plan for growth personally and interpersonally.

Overview

These statements provide a broad understanding of Graeme's work style. Use this section to gain a better understanding of his approaches to his activities, relationships and decisions.

Personal Style

Graeme's work style is a balance of structure and responsibility with an awareness of others' needs. He may not readily talk of his need to move continually to become who he really wants to be. Although he has a tendency to undertake too much, somehow everything gets done in its own time. He is gently forceful in having his ideas applied where it matters to him. He is loyal, supportive, idealistic and creative. Graeme likes to prepare well and prefers to know why and how things happen.

Serious, conscientious and loyal, Graeme is a dedicated worker. He will seek an environment in which he can be quietly productive. Underlying his characteristic tolerance is a natural curiosity. He finds the diversity of the world immensely appealing. His easy-going exterior may mask a rather more compulsive interior. He tends to be fiercely loyal to his friends, prepared to sacrifice his own wants for the needs of the other person. If his efforts are not recognised, or approval is withheld, he may feel deflated as his feeling of worth can depend on how others regard him.

His strong sense of personal values may make him reserved around strangers whose values he feels may conflict with his own. Finding it hard to understand why some others try to impose limits, order and structure upon others, he avoids attempting to change or control people. He likes a certain neatness and order and prefers a harmonious environment, where each person can be appreciated for their contribution and can feel a sense of personal accomplishment. He has a tendency to play down the rules, particularly if they appear to oppose his values. He may speak of or express his ideals indirectly.

One of his outstanding traits is economy of effort. Graeme tends to be at his most flexible, adaptable and easy-going in everyday living, preferring to fit in harmoniously with those around him. He may underestimate himself and either takes anything he does well for granted, or regards it as no great achievement at all. As he values his integrity, he can be determined to the point of being stubborn about issues that are important to him. Due to his sociable, friendly and warm-hearted demeanour, he is best employed in providing practical service to others.

His work has to contribute to things that matter to him and he tends toward perfectionism only when he cares deeply enough. Graeme is a steady individual who lends a quiet stability to everything. He is easy-going and low key and may be prone to doubting his own ability. Graeme displays fierce loyalty to and for people who report to him. He likes system, order and few surprises and to work in an environment which he feels is secure.

Interacting with Others

In day-to-day matters Graeme is flexible, tolerant and adaptable. Although somewhat hard to get to know well, his fulfilling private life makes him loyal and trustworthy in friendship. He can be unbelieving of, and devastated by, too much personal criticism. Unpleasant working relationships can lead him to lose confidence and motivation. Possessing a quiet strength, his caring, concerned approach to life seems to encourage other people to confide in him. Others can find him a complex person who is difficult to get to know and understand.

He is reticent about conflict and can usually detect, ahead of others, when a disagreement is about to erupt. Empathetic and compassionate, he has a strong need to contribute to the welfare of others. He is often friendly, although he tends to avoid socialising at a superficial level. Graeme's habitual view of people is non-confrontational, understanding and forgiving. His dependability and willingness to lend a sympathetic yet objective ear makes him a supportive team player.

Graeme probably prefers more relaxed social interaction. Do not assume this to be an indication that he is not serious about important issues. He has a natural ability to switch his behaviour between feelings that are shared and those that are private in an effort to relate. Graeme is seen as a gentle, caring and sensitive person who keeps many of his intensely personal ideals and values to himself. His deepest feelings will rarely be articulated. Amenable, patient and friendly, Graeme tends to build close, low-key relationships with a small number of associates in the work environment.

Decision Making

Graeme is good at easing tense situations, enabling competing or conflicting groups to unite. Non-judgemental and accepting of others' behaviour in a rather factual way, he notices things around him and will generally find the deeper meanings within most situations. Concern for others' welfare can strongly affect his decisions. It is in gaining others' acceptance of his ideas that he provides quality leadership. He tends to make choices around his own personal feelings which may be as important to him as more objective data.

His quiet demeanour often allows him to get agreement to his alternative solutions. Generally a reflective decision maker, he finds problems stimulating and usually reflects carefully before he acts. Graeme will usually encourage democratic or even consensus decisions, as opposed to having them imposed autocratically. He is not usually prepared to commit to high risk decisions. His natural introversion does not prevent him from making critical and incisive comments with conviction and presence.

Open-minded, curious and insightful, Graeme has excellent long-range vision and sensitivity. He takes a personal approach to living, assessing events through the personal values and ideals which govern his life. Graeme will respect alternative views and although he may not agree with them, they will be considered. His decisions are influenced by ethical and moral issues. Graeme will be deeply committed whenever he chooses to undertake a role or task.

Personal Notes

Key Strengths & Weaknesses

Strengths

This section identifies the key strengths which Graeme brings to the organisation. Graeme has abilities, skills and attributes in other areas, but the statements below are likely to be some of the fundamental gifts he has to offer.

Graeme's key strengths:

- Learns from experience - won't get hurt by the same situation twice.
 - Highly effective where consistent performance is required.
 - His word is his bond.
 - Compassionate, with a caring and concerned approach.
 - Looks for the harmony in every situation.
 - Supportive, steadfast and encouraging of others.
 - Solid organisational abilities.
 - Modest and friendly with those he knows.
 - Usually reads non-verbal signs effectively.
 - Values differences.
-

Personal Notes

Key Strengths & Weaknesses

Possible Weaknesses

Jung said “wisdom accepts that all things have two sides”. It has also been said that a weakness is simply an overused strength. Graeme's responses to the Evaluator have suggested these areas as possible weaknesses.

Graeme's possible weaknesses:

- Seems to lack drive or initiative when pressured.
 - The tendency to bear a grudge against those who do not share his values.
 - Can seek perfection, yet underrates and underestimates his contribution.
 - Can be manipulated by supervisors or significant others.
 - May be slow to express his thoughts or feelings.
 - Persistence and loyalty may delay decisive action.
 - May unwillingly sacrifice his own needs for others.
 - Preserves relationships - can interfere with task completion.
 - Can miss opportunities by being cautious around strangers.
 - Dislikes unpredictable environments.
-

Personal Notes

Value to the Team

Each person brings a unique set of gifts, attributes and expectations to the environment in which they operate. Add to this list any other experiences, skills or other attributes which Graeme brings, and make the most important items on the list available to other team members.

As a team member, Graeme:

- Makes great effort to build and maintain relationships with others.
 - Has a passion for the important values in life.
 - Offers emotional support to others.
 - Capitalises on and makes efficient use of the available resources.
 - Seeks to be compliant and willing to adapt.
 - Can adhere to high standards.
 - Always seeks to understand the other's viewpoint.
 - Is dependable with a stabilising presence.
 - Likes and is liked by most others.
 - Values tradition and stability.
-

Personal Notes

Communication

Effective Communications

Communication can only be effective if it is received and understood by the recipient. For each person certain communication strategies are more effective than others. This section identifies some of the key strategies which will lead to effective communication with Graeme. Identify the most important statements and make them available to colleagues.

Strategies for communicating with Graeme:

- Encourage the expression of feelings which might remain unsaid.
 - Be careful to maintain the status quo.
 - Listen to and value his suggestions and contributions.
 - Gaining obedience is not enough - ensure you have co-operation.
 - Take care that you don't overload him.
 - If you ask a question, be quiet and give time for him to consider his response.
 - Appeal to his need to be of service.
 - Appeal to his good nature and loyalty.
 - Deal with him in an honest and sincere way.
 - Take the time to get to know him well.
 - Do not let him hide behind complexity and privacy. Maintain his focus upon outcomes.
 - Take your time getting to know him if you want critical feedback.
-

Personal Notes

Communication

Barriers to Effective Communication

Certain strategies will be less effective when communicating with Graeme. Some of the things to be avoided are listed below. This information can be used to develop powerful, effective and mutually acceptable communication strategies.

When communicating with Graeme, DO NOT:

- Allow exchanges to become confrontational.
 - Criticise without first acknowledging positive contributions.
 - Labour the point or give lengthy verbal instructions.
 - Sweep aside his doubts without full consideration.
 - Encourage him to undertake a high profile task against his will.
 - Smother his efforts to explore alternatives.
 - Assume he knows he has chosen well.
 - Focus on his weaknesses or chastise him publicly.
 - Ignore or be dismissive of his suggestions.
 - Be brusque, overbearing or harness him to unrealistic deadlines.
 - Act aggressively or reject his ideas without explanation.
 - Look for immediate answers.
-

Personal Notes

Possible Blind Spots

Our perceptions of self may be different to the perceptions others have of us. We project who we are onto the outside world through our “persona” and are not always aware of the effect our less conscious behaviours have on others. These less conscious behaviours are termed “Blind Spots”. Highlight the important statements in this section of which you are unaware and test them for validity by asking for feedback from friends or colleagues.

Graeme's possible Blind Spots:

Although he may not readily display it, Graeme can be so committed to his own principles that he develops tunnel vision. Adopting a low profile is not always in his best interests. Speaking first rather than waiting to respond can help to balance the rather shy appearance he may project at times. If he tried to develop more objectivity about his projects and tasks he would become less vulnerable to criticism and disappointment.

By applying some objectivity and even scepticism to his analysis, he might become a better judge of others. He could learn how to more consistently keep focused on track and on time bounded objectives. When he is disappointed, he may become negative about everything and everyone around him. Continuously focusing on his current experiences, he tends not to look beyond the moment and may miss the broader view. Highly vulnerable to idealising relationships, he tends to overlook facts that contradict what he wants to believe.

He is so committed to his own ideals, he has a tendency to overlook other points of view and can sometimes be seen by others as very rigid or stubborn. He should attempt to analyse what it is that is making him feel resentment on occasions. Graeme may reflect longer than is necessary before undertaking or beginning a project. He may exert pressure on others to do the “right thing” from a moral standpoint - but the “right thing” comes from his perception. He should learn how to accept and deal with conflict as a necessary part of bettering his relationships with others.

Personal Notes

Opposite Type

The description in this section is based on Graeme's opposite type on the Insights Wheel. Often, we have most difficulty understanding and interacting with those whose preferences are different to our own. Recognising these characteristics can help in developing strategies for personal growth and enhanced interpersonal effectiveness.

Recognising your Opposite Type:

Graeme's opposite Insights type is the Director, Jung's "Extraverted Thinking" type.

Directors are forceful, demanding, decisive people who tend to be strong individualists. They are forward looking, progressive and compete to attain goals. Graeme will see them as headstrong and they often have a wide range of interests. In solving problems they are logical and incisive. Graeme may well experience the Director as cold, blunt and over-bearing. Directors tend to be seen as self-centred and lacking in empathy and can be highly critical and fault finding when their standards are not met.

Directors may overstep boundaries and may be impatient and dissatisfied with routine work. They want freedom from control, supervision and details. Graeme may see the Director as aggressive and tending to order people around, as they often rely on personal forcefulness and intimidation to achieve their aims. Directors are "take charge" types with very high control needs. They may not often cope well personally when things do not go as planned.

Graeme sees Directors as having short fuses. When pushed the Director may become loud, rigid and domineering. The Director tends to be a focused, if somewhat disorganised, manager with a tenacious drive towards the future. The Director's biggest drawbacks may be perceived by Graeme as arrogance, impatience and insensitivity to others' feelings.

Personal Notes

Opposite Type

Communication with Graeme's Opposite Type

Written specifically for Graeme, this section suggests some strategies he could use for effective interaction with someone who is his opposite type on the Insights Wheel.

Graeme Wright: How you can meet the needs of your Opposite Type:

- Remember to thank him for his time.
- Go prepared to get straight down to business.
- Allow him time to consider all the information.
- Be frank, earnest, decisive and confident.
- Omit unnecessary and intricate details.
- Deal in probabilities not possibilities.

Graeme Wright: When dealing with your opposite type DO NOT:

- Offer opinions on personal issues unless he asks for them.
 - Tell him what to do or how to do it.
 - Talk slowly, mumble or whisper.
 - Underestimate his abilities to decide for himself.
 - Be indecisive, unclear or “woolly”.
 - Expect to “rail road” him - without a fight.
-

Personal Notes

Suggestions for Development

Insights Discovery does not offer direct measures of skill, intelligence, education or training. However, listed below are some suggestions for Graeme's development. Identify the most important areas which have not yet been addressed. These can then be incorporated into a personal development plan.

Graeme may benefit from:

- Practising spotting the “Achilles Heel” in other peoples' arguments and bringing it to their notice.
 - Getting right to the point.
 - Dealing with some problems “head on”.
 - Considering previous mistakes as periods of personal growth.
 - Looking to achieve quicker results.
 - Recognising the need for heightened urgency in some projects.
 - Assistance in embracing the new and eliminating the old.
 - Seeking the positive side of every situation.
 - Attempting to respond more quickly to his more extraverted colleagues.
 - Gaining a clear understanding of his true potential.
-

Personal Notes

Management

Creating the Ideal Environment

People are generally most effective when provided with an environment which suits their preferences and style. It can be uncomfortable to work in an environment which does not. This section should be used to ensure a close match between Graeme's ideal environment and his current one and to identify any possible frustrations.

Graeme's Ideal Environment is one in which:

- There is an empathetic and caring team approach.
 - He has freedom from authority and bureaucracy.
 - There is time for play during work hours, and social bonding outside of work.
 - There are opportunities to socialise with colleagues in and out of work.
 - There is time for reflection and meditation.
 - He is valued as a unique individual.
 - Reliance on competition between colleagues is minimal.
 - Family and outside personal interests feature prominently.
 - Informal, low-pressure meetings are the norm.
 - Mundane and repetitive work is minimised.
-

Personal Notes

Management

Managing Graeme

This section identifies some of the most important strategies in managing Graeme. Some of these needs can be met by Graeme himself and some may be met by his colleagues or management. Go through this list to identify the most important current needs, and use it to build a personal management plan.

Graeme needs:

- Regular opportunities to interact with other well respected and valued colleagues.
 - Sufficient time to prepare for meetings.
 - To be part of a small team where ideas are encouraged and valued.
 - To be a key player in a small but successful team.
 - Respect for his need for reflection and solitude.
 - Regular reviews to ensure that he is actively overcoming challenges.
 - His own workspace with room for personal effects.
 - Assignments that take him away from the workplace.
 - To be assigned one task at a time.
 - Long term security.
-

Personal Notes

Management

Motivating Graeme

It has often been said that it is not possible to motivate anyone - only to provide the environment in which they will motivate themselves. Here are some suggestions which can help to provide motivation for Graeme. With his agreement, build the most important ones into his Performance Management System and Key Result Areas for maximum motivation.

Graeme is motivated by:

- Opportunities to express his feelings in relation to performance.
 - Contributing to the success of others.
 - Openness and honesty.
 - Being made to feel "one of us".
 - Quiet, tenacious endeavour which is rewarded in a low key way.
 - An internal desire "to do the right thing in the right way".
 - A manager who tends to lead by example.
 - Appreciation for a job well done.
 - Promises fulfilled.
 - Being asked for his opinion.
-

Personal Notes

Management Style

There are many different approaches to management, most of which have different situational applications. This section identifies Graeme's natural management approach and offers clues to his management style, highlighting both gifts and possible hindrances that can be further explored.

In managing others, Graeme may tend to:

- Set and maintain a sense of neatness and order.
 - Achieve results through good relationships.
 - Idealise those whom he respects.
 - Lead through encouragement and coaching, rather than through control.
 - Appear cold and aloof until he gets to know people well.
 - Require time for consideration before making decisions.
 - Be too trusting of his people.
 - Go to great lengths to do things “by the book”.
 - Become so immersed in his own thoughts that, although aware of this distraction, he fails to react spontaneously when his support is needed by others.
 - Dislike “hard-nosed” disciplinary matters within the workplace.
-

Personal Notes

Personal Achievement Chapter

At its best, life is a rewarding journey of personal exploration and growth.

This chapter is designed to focus on several highly important aspects of personal development. Using the guidance suggested in these pages can lead to exciting changes and can have a profound impact on success.

The sections will help Graeme define his life's purpose, set his goals and organize his time and life to achieve them. It offers suggestions on how he can tap into his natural creativity, and unleash further creative potential from deeper aspects of his personality, to overcome any obstacle.

Finally, it gives powerful suggestions for Graeme to understand and enhance his preferred learning styles.

When applied, the ideas contained in this profile can provide insights and support to life's journey of development.

Living on Purpose

Having a sense of purpose and worthy goals are important to building a strong foundation for a successful life. Here are some of the things Graeme should be aware of in setting goals and defining his purpose.

Living on Purpose

Graeme's goals are usually underpinned by a strong core set of personal values. Tolerant and giving, the person he criticises most is often himself. He should take care to keep his criticism positive as he may blame himself for too much, too easily. He tends to prefer realistic, perhaps even conservative goals. He should stretch sometimes, aiming for the stars.

He has an independent and objective nature coupled with a strong sense of personal values. It is important to him that his career role can reflect this gift. He prefers a steady approach to work that may be wrongly interpreted as laziness by some. Although Graeme has a tendency to undertake too much, somehow everything gets done. With a more disciplined and structured approach he could be even more effective. Graeme is usually able to achieve a healthy balance between his personal and professional life. Graeme loyalty to team issues will be evident in all he does: He should remember, however, that his own needs are just as important, and his personal attainment will benefit the team in other ways.

Psychology, counselling and education may hold great appeal for him. A major part of his purpose in life is to maintain stability and have the support of others. He is a past master at ordering and prioritising things in his life. He is a "no nonsense" person who is not often attracted by the strange, exotic or unfamiliar. His sometimes unassuming and self effacing demeanour may not reflect the potential within. Although perhaps reluctant to do so, seeking support and guidance from those close to him may significantly enhance this potential.

Personal Notes

Time and Life Management

Benjamin Franklin said "Dost thou love life? Then do not squander time, for that is the stuff life is made of". This section contains some strategies that Graeme can use to become more effective in the area of time and life management. Choose the most significant ones and apply them every day for high levels of effectiveness.

In managing his time, Graeme,	Suggested Action For Development
Prefers time for ideas and visioning.	→ Recognise that success also starts by taking action.
Sometimes wastes time worrying and being pessimistic.	→ Many negative concerns generate positive outcomes.
Feels comfortable with structure at home and work.	→ Consider any negative impact of too rigid structures on personal and business life.
Spends the time necessary on important people issues.	→ Remember the task deadlines that have been committed to.
May seem too relaxed and patient to some.	→ Work at taking a more action-oriented approach.
Consumes much of his time understanding complex issues.	→ Delegate more of the detailed groundwork to leave more time for other issues.

Personal Notes

Personal Creativity

Creativity has been defined as seeing the same thing as someone else but thinking something different. Different people have different creative strengths. This section identifies some of Graeme's creative characteristics and how he can build on them.

In his creativity, Graeme,		Suggested Action For Development
Will absorb and evaluate information before taking decisions.	→	Place more trust in intuition or "gut-feel" occasionally.
Listens to the views of many others in developing new ideas.	→	Save time by limiting the number of people needed to make an input.
Will embrace ideas that are beneficial to others.	→	Give equal attention to task and people issues.
Likes to be perfectly organised for his spontaneity sessions!	→	Get going, and organise later.
Likes to share his ideas with others.	→	Give additional time to pre-planning the sharing.
Will act as a good barometer on the feasibility of new ideas.	→	Help others to fully evaluate their ideas prior to implementation.

Personal Notes

Lifelong Learning

Continual learning is a key part of personal development and growth. This section identifies several ideas Graeme can use to learn more effectively. Use these statements to map out a learning strategy and to create the environment for optimum personal growth.

Graeme's preferred learning style is supported when he:

- Can read a brief in advance of a meeting, about the subjects that are to be covered.
- Can read and study supporting literature.
- Has time to relate the theory to the practical application.
- Can use a more factual than intuitive approach to the subject.
- Is able to exchange views with others.
- Feels that an exercise, like role-playing, is worthwhile.

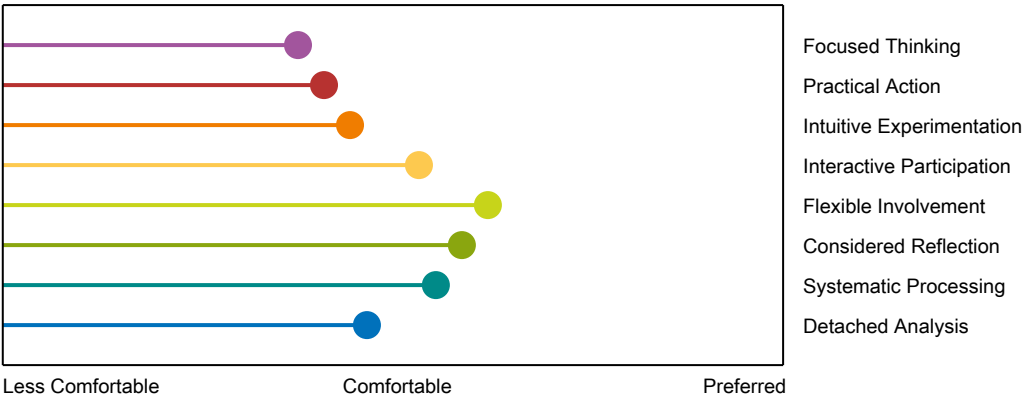

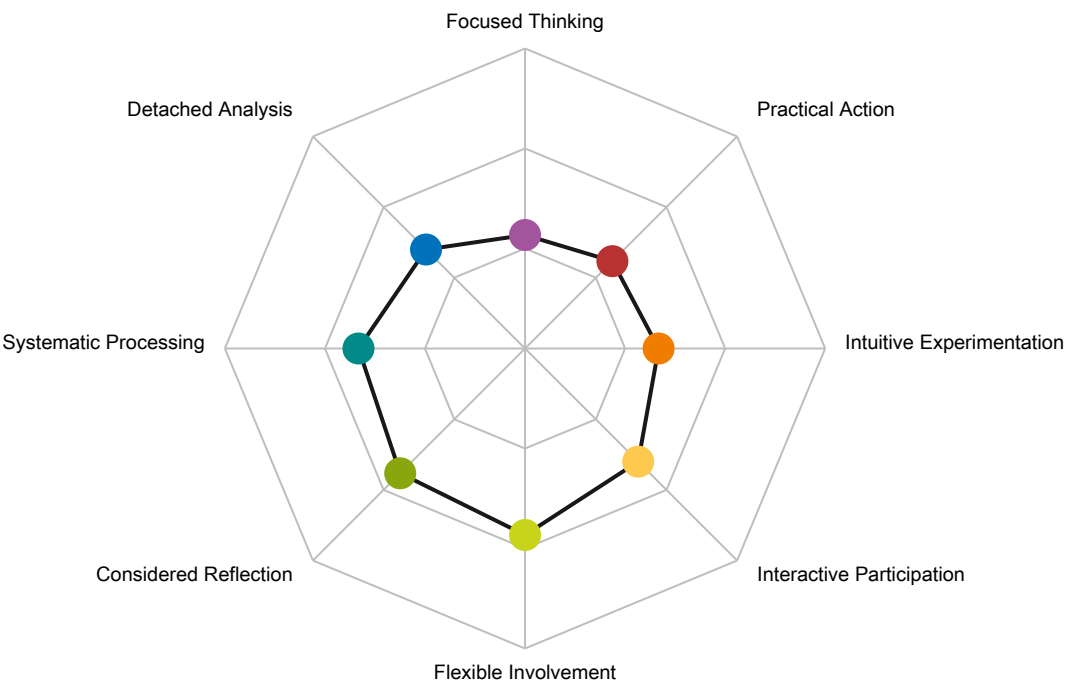

Graeme can stretch in learning by:

- Participating in a competitive group activity that involves an element of risk and excitement.
 - Periodically seeks challenges that will push him well out of his comfort zone.
 - Dipping into more books without worrying about completing them all.
 - Taking the time to review his progress regularly.
 - Making an action plan and sticking to it.
 - Being more task-focused from time to time.
-

Personal Notes

Learning Styles

07 May 2025

Interview Questions

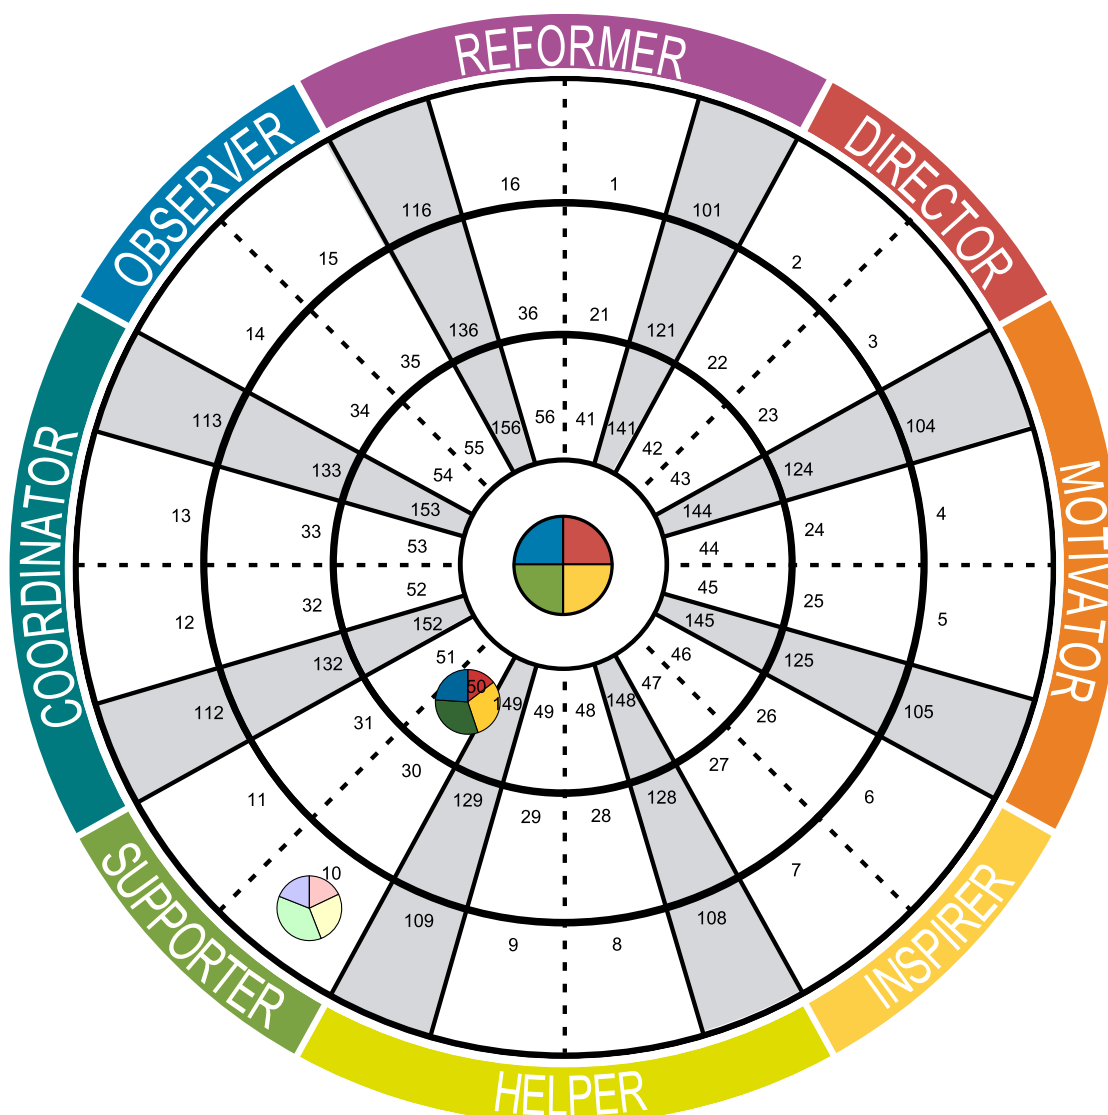

This section lists several questions which can be used in interviewing Graeme Wright. The questions can be used as they appear here, or can be adapted to suit the interviewer's own style or needs. The questions are raised by considering issues Graeme may be less comfortable with - those development areas in which he may have fewer strengths. Some or all of these topics should be used along with other questions which may be job specific. Using them will help establish the level of Graeme's self-awareness and personal growth.

Interview Questions:

- What would you see as a priority between getting the job done at all costs or putting someone's needs first?
- Why should we be careful not to dismiss others point of view?
- What are your personal goals?
- Do you consider brevity in reporting an advantage or disadvantage?
- Do you feel compromise is often the best solution?
- At work do you tend to present your true feelings on a subject? Why is this?
- Do you like to express your views frankly and openly?
- What benefits come out of others' points of view regarding our performance?
- What are your plans for personal development?
- How often do you exercise? What forms does your exercise take?

Personal Notes

The Insights Discovery® 72 Type Wheel

Conscious Wheel Position

50: Helping Supporter (Accommodating)

Less Conscious Wheel Position

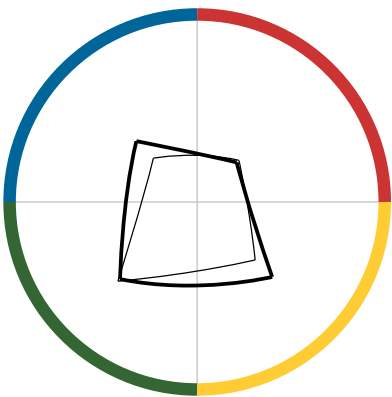

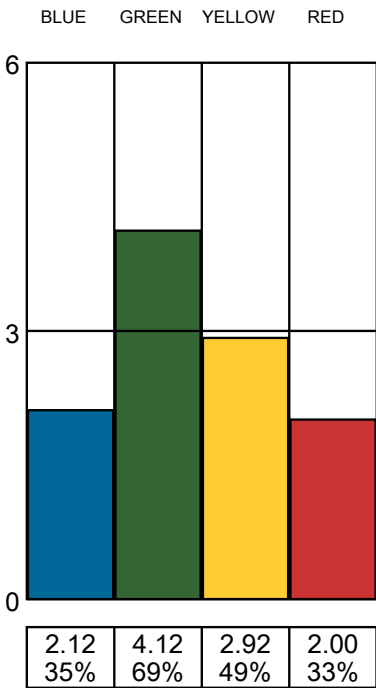

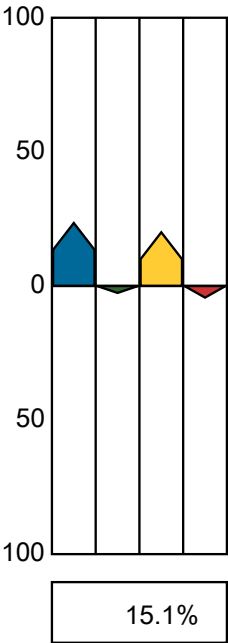

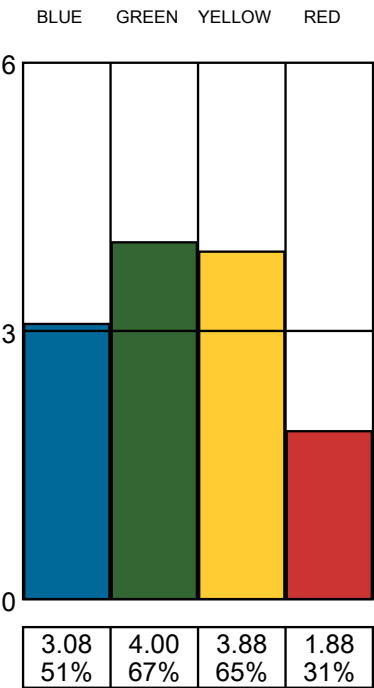

10: Helping Supporter (Focused)

The Insights Discovery® Colour Dynamics

Persona (Conscious)

Preference Flow

Persona (Less Conscious)

— Conscious
— Less Conscious

GLOBAL HEADQUARTERS

PROFILE: D_PR_RETENTION

Insights Learning & Development

Terra Nova, 3 Explorer Road, Dundee, DD2 1EG, Scotland, UK.

TEL: +44(0)1382 908050 FAX: +44(0)1382 908051

EMAIL: insights@insights.com WEB: www.insights.com